PENNINGTON, N.J., October 18—Pennington School senior Ibrahima Diop has been selected as one of the nation’s 38 elite boys’ soccer players to take part in the seventh annual High School All-American Game. In addition, Pennington’s boys’ soccer coach Chad Bridges is one of the seven coaches selected for the event.

The players were selected from fall-playing states across the country to participate in the game on December 2, 2017, in Orlando, Fla. They will be divided geographically into East and West teams for the contest. The players chosen are seniors who have finished their high school careers and represented their high school teams during the fall season. They have achieved many regional and national awards and will attend some of the top universities and colleges across the country.

Diop, from Saint-Louis, Senegal, was the Trenton Times Player of the Year in boys’ soccer in 2016 after scoring a hat trick in the Prep A final against St. Benedict’s. Bridges, a Ewing Township native, graduated from The Pennington School in 1996; he is also the School’s assistant headmaster for community life.
